Reading 4: Items 16 - 19
Situation: The news report.

(1) Two people were rescued after they fell into a partially filled chocolate tank while doing maintenance work at a candy factory in Pennsylvania. The sticky situation unfolded on Thursday at the Mars Wrigley plant in Elizabethtown. Officials did not say how the people became trapped in the chocolate vat.

(2) It was reported that the chocolate in the tank was about waist-high, and that the workers were unable to get out on their own. Emergency responders were able to free the pair by cutting a hole in the bottom of the tank. The first person was extracted at 3:10 pm and the second 15 minutes later.

(3) It wasn't clear if either person was injured, but they were taken to hospitals to be evaluated. Their names and further details on their conditions were not disclosed, officials said.

(4) The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is investigating the incident. An OSHA official declined to comment on the matter, citing the ongoing investigation.

16. What is this news mainly about?
    1. The rescue of some repair workers
    2. Investigation of a factory accident
    3. A sticky step in chocolate production
    4. Common types of accidents in the workplace

17. According to the news, which of the following is TRUE about the victims?
    1. They fell into a full tank of chocolate.
    2. They were badly injured in the accident.
    3. They were pulled out of the tank one at a time.
    4. They were working inside the chocolate tank.

18. Which paragraph describes the rescue efforts?
    1. 1
    2. 2
    3. 3
    4. 4

19. Based on the last paragraph of the news, what is likely to happen next?
    1. The chocolate factory will be closed permanently.
    2. The two workers will be compensated for their injuries.
    3. The factory owner will take responsibility for the accident.
    4. OSHA will release its findings after an investigation.

Reading 5: Items 20-23
Situation: The feature story.

(1) Everyone has heard of the superstition that if you break a mirror, you'll end up with seven-years bad luck. But where did it come from?

(2) This superstition is said to date back thousands of years. Some say that it originated when humans first used water to see their reflections. They may have believed that the image in the water was actually their soul and that any disruption to the water (and their reflection) would mean that harm would come to them as well.

(3) Another possible origin of the mirror superstition comes from ancient myths. One tale suggests that mirrors are a force of magic, with the ability to allow one to see into the future. It was believed that if the mirror was smashed or destroyed, its powers would be terminated, and the person whose reflection was last in the mirror would experience a future of misfortune.

(4) But where did the seven years' time come from? This part of the superstition was added by the Romans. It was believed that life renewed itself after seven years. They believed that if a sick person looked into a mirror, their image would break the mirror and bad luck would continue until their life was renewed.

(5) Some believe that one way to avoid the bad luck associated with breaking a mirror is to take the broken pieces and bury them underground under the moonlight.

20. What is the passage mainly about?
    1. The result of breaking a mirror
    2. The origins of the mirror superstition
    3. The belief in the renewal of life after 7 years
    4. The misfortune of the person last reflected in a broken mirror

21. According to paragraph 2, what is TRUE about ancient people?
    1. They believed water was bad for their soul.
    2. They were scared by their reflections.
    3. They enjoyed looking at their reflections in the water.
    4. They might have thought the disturbance of their reflections in the water could bring harm to them.

22. Which question about the mirror superstition can be answered from the passage?
    1. How long does a mirror's force of magic last?
    2. Where does the power in the mirrors come from?
    3. What type of misfortune would one face after breaking a mirror?
    4. How can one avoid misfortune after breaking a mirror?

23. What is the purpose of the last paragraph?
    1. To defend a belief
    2. To confirm a theory
    3. To suggest a solution
    4. To promote an argument
